

Fred, the Dinosaur

Once upon a time, there was a very faraway land, called Dinoland, where dinosaurs were still alive. Every dinosaur was mean, except Fred, the purple dinosaur. Fred was very nice. He tried to teach all the other dinosaurs how to be nice, but none of them listened to him.

So, Fred left Dinoland to search for a new land. He traveled through water, around trees, and over mountains. He could not find a new place to live. Later, he came to a dark portal. The portal would take him anywhere he wanted to go. Fred wished for a new land and he walked through the portal.

There it was! It was the most perfect land Fred had ever seen. It was a green valley that had enough fruit to last him for the rest of his life. He started running around with joy.

At first, all the dinosaurs living there were afraid of him. Fred told them he was nice, not mean. Fred met a blue dinosaur, named Penelope. He was finally happy to find a new friend and a new home.
