

Toto and His Friends

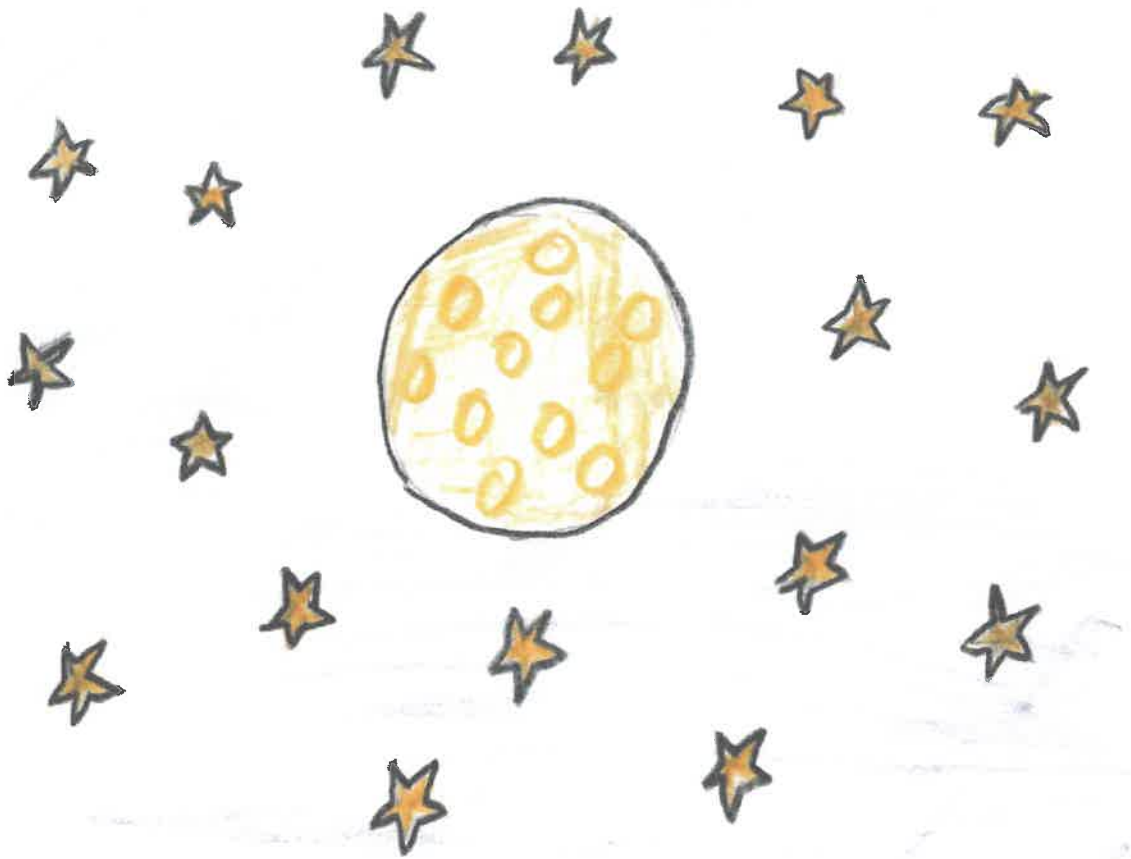

Once upon a time, there was a little cute sparrow named Toto. He could fly at the speed at thirty miles per hour to forty-six miles per hour, and he loved summer because he enjoyed the warm weather. Toto was so cute that the eagles did not eat him as a meal. Toto could fly one mile over a green hill. He hated clouds in the sky because the clouds blocked his view. Toto loved going on adventures in the trees, and his home was in a big tall tree. The tree is around fifty-six feet high.

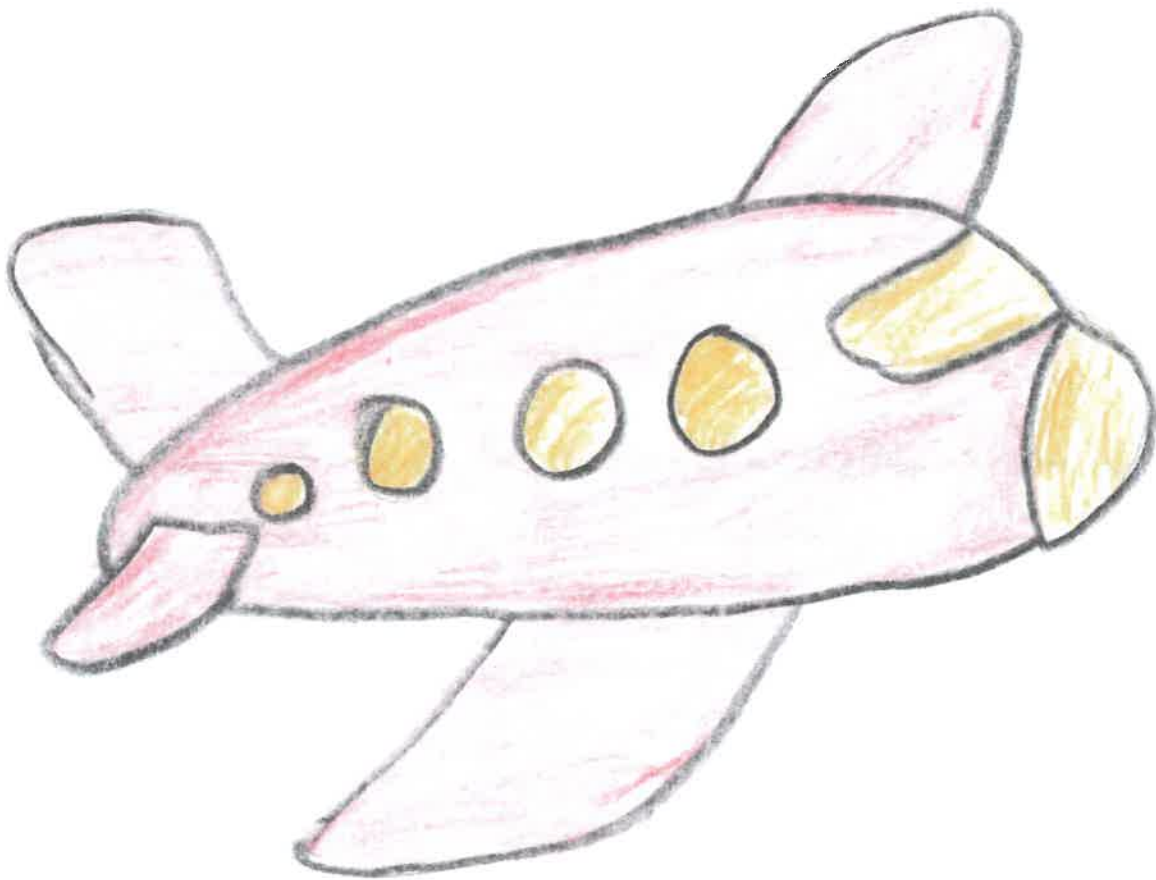

Toto had some good friends, and his good friends are very big. They are three times his size. Toto's friends were blue jays, and their names are Bluey, Fluffy, and Dotty. Toto enjoyed playing with his friends. Sometimes, they would find all kinds of insects and worms in the tree, and guess who ate the most? They also played a flying game called "Fly into a Sky" to see who could fly the highest. Toto always came in last because he did not like the clouds. But he was always the first one to fly back down from the sky and reach the tree. So, his friends took first place for flying high in the sky, and Toto earned his own first place by getting back down quickly. In the end of the game, they all felt like winners in this game.

At night, Toto and his friends loved seeing at the sky. Some nights, they would see a moon with many stars. Other nights, they would only see stars. Sometimes, they would see shooting stars. One night, they saw a blinking red light in the sky. Fluffy flew up to see and quickly returned to tell his friends that he had seen a giant bird that looked like a monster. Toto wanted to see it too, but he was afraid of the clouds. Bluey told Toto not to worry that he would fly with him. Together, they flew above the clouds and saw the giant blinking red “monster”. It turned out to be a large airplane that soon flew away.
